

STATE HAIL FUTURE NOW IS DISCUSSED

Decrease in Acreage in Last Two Years Presents a Problem for Officials

IS AGAINST LIMIT

Commission of Insurance Officers Declares Maximum Tax Provision Wrong

The future of the State Hail Insurance Department, which this year sustained greater losses than it can pay in full under the maximum insurance tax permitted by the legislature, is being discussed among state officials and others. Whether the decrease of more than 30 percent in the acreage insured in the last two years will be followed by an additional decrease in the insured acreage next year, with a consequent insufficiency in the maximum rate should losses be heavy, is a matter of serious concern not only to officials of the State Hail Insurance Department but to other officials interested in the subject.

The statement of Governor Nestos, in declining to call a special session of the legislature to change a law which that body enacted and suggestion that if the law is to be changed it can be expeditiously changed by use of the initiative in the March, 1924, primary election, finds accord in the state department. Martin Hagen, manager of the department, said today that the department is not in favor of an extra session of the legislature. It is possible, he said, that if the matter of insufficiency of the maximum tax is brought before the people by the initiative, two or three other amendments may be proposed. There is lack of agreement among officials as to the cause for the heavy decrease in the insured acreage. Commissioner of Insurance S. A. Olness ascribes it solely to a depression in the farming business.

Cause of Decrease. One difference between the state hail insurance law workings and that of old line companies, according to one representative of the latter, is that the state department insures anybody while the old line companies limit insurance, some insuring but one quarter out of a section of land. This method is used by old line companies to diversify the risk and avoid danger of unusually heavy losses from a storm which would completely wipe out one area.

Many farmers, it is said by some officials, are willing to "take a chance" and save the expense of hail insurance by withdrawing from the state fund; others do not desire to bind themselves to insurance until they ascertain whether or not they will have a crop. Some areas are supposed to be particularly liable to hail and others free from it, and farmers in the former desire insurance while in the latter areas they wish to drop it. This natural development, according to one official, will lead to a steady decrease in the hail insurance acreage so long as the same rate applies to every section of the state, and in the end it will result in only those areas particularly liable to hail being insured, which would force a very high insurance rate.

Another spokesman suggested that as diversification in crops increased, and vast acreage of grain passes, the natural result will be a diminution in the amount of hail insurance.

Commissioner of Insurance S. A. Olness favors removing the limit of 50 cents an acre on $7.00 an acre insurance, which the legislature placed, providing at the same time that if this tax was not sufficient to pay all losses in full, the losses should be prorated.

Mr. Olness says the 50-cent maximum was not placed in the law by the legislators to prevent the insurance from becoming burdensome. "I was present at all the caucuses and committee meetings dealing with the discussing and framing of the original hail law, but I never heard that argument advanced," he said.

Maximum Levy Wrong. "If we could prevent insurance from becoming burdensome by simply setting our own limit as to the premium rate we want to pay it might have been placed at a still better figure than 50 cents. The only reason ever presented was this, advance by the attorney who assisted in drafting the law, that unless some limit was prescribed, the law might be unconstitutional. The limit was then set at 50 cents, which was assumed to be safe. I stood out against this arrangement all the time, as I could not see why there should be any distinction in this respect between a state hail insurance mutual and any other private or co-operative mutual covering other kinds of insurance. I know of no other such insurance plan where premium and indemnity are limited in this manner preventing the insured from collecting damages in full in case of total loss. I do not believe the absence of a maximum limit would render it unconstitutional and I hope that the next legislature will remove this abnormality from our present law."

DISABLED VETS AGAIN OBSERVE DAY FOR AID

National Forget-Me-Not Day to be Observed in Bismarck on November 10

National Forget-Me-Not Day" will be observed in Bismarck, as in other cities of the nation, on November 10. Mrs. B. A. Tracey, who was city chairman for Forget-Me-Not Day last year has accepted the request of the local chapter of the Disabled Veterans of the World War to act as chairman this year. Forget-Me-Not Day will be held and the proceeds used for the disabled veterans. Heartly approval of the aims and purposes of "National Forget-Me-Not Day" was voiced in a letter just sent to National Commander James A. McFarland of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, by President Calvin Coolidge. The nation's chief executive wrote the Disabled Vets' leader as follows:

Washington, D. C. My dear Commander McFarland: I want to express to you my hope that the observance of "Forget-Me-Not Day" by the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, on Saturday, November 10th, will be generously supported by the public.

The thousands who bear the scars of the War will always hold their place in the hearts of the American people. You can be assured that those in places of national responsibility are striving to the utmost to aid and compensate them, so far as compensation is possible. Your organization has shown a fine spirit of cooperation with the Government in its efforts to assist these brave soldiers in their difficult task, for which I am glad to express appreciation.

Most sincerely yours, CALVIN COOLIDGE.

NEW FORBES CHARGES MADE

Was Seeking to Remove Stocks of Liquor, Is Declaration

Washington, Oct. 30. — Charges that Charles P. Forbes, while director of the Veterans' Bureau, still was seeking as late as September, 1922, to surreptitiously remove large stocks of narcotics and liquors from the government hospital at Perryville, Maryland, were made at the continuation of the senate investigation of the Veterans' Bureau.

James M. Williams, a Philadelphia dairyman was the witness, his testimony being designed to support in part of the sensational story told the committee last week by Elias H. Mortimer, also of Philadelphia, about his alleged relations with Forbes at a time when he was seeking contracts for hospitals from the director.

Williams testified that aside from proposing removal of the narcotics and liquors, Forbes, with a man named Bieber, had sought to obtain from Mrs. Mortimer certain papers belonging to Mortimer and also to "embitter" Mrs. Mortimer against her husband. This was at a time after Mortimer, according to his testimony, had "broken" with Forbes and when Williams understood, Mrs. Mortimer was contemplating a divorce from her husband.

SCHOLARSHIPS ARE OFFERED. New England, N. D., Oct. 30. — The local Legion post and the Legion auxiliary have posted a $50 scholarship prize to be awarded the 1924 graduate, boy and girl, from the local high school with the best scholastic record for the year in all branches of study.

SEES RESERVE CORPS AS BEST U.S. PROTECTION

Dr. E. P. Quain, Back from Reserve Officers National Convention, Urges Support

MUST BE PREPARED

One of Main Functions of Regular Army Now to Instruct Willing Civilians

Dr. E. P. Quain returned today from Detroit, Mich., where he was as a delegate to the national convention of the Reserve Officers' association.

"There were a number of prominent speakers, including a representative from General Pershing's staff, and also the Assistant Secretary of War," said Dr. Quain. "These men gave special emphasis to the new plan of defense, inaugurated since the late war. In this plan one of the most important functions of the regular army is to give instruction in peace time to civilians who signify their willingness to serve their country in time of war. Of great and stirring interest were talks by some prominent Americans who had traveled abroad and learned how all the leading nations are profiting by the lessons of the late war and are building up their military defenses accordingly. So, for instance, in Europe the manufacturers of armaments receive large subsidies from their governments, some up to fifty per cent of the cost of manufacture, for the purpose of developing air fleets for military uses. Our attention was called to our government neglect of all such preparations because the American public does not seem to realize the necessity for providing sufficient funds to carry out any peace time plan of national defense. As shown by recent events, the people of the United States are ready to pour out billions for military purposes after a war has become unavoidable, and are willing to be taxed economically and continuously to pay for the past war, but cannot see the economy of spending a few millions in preparations for defense before war is upon us. The regular army itself is becoming so small that it has not personnel enough to give proper instruction even to those who volunteer for training."

"Well meaning but misled people are to blame for this state of affairs, which plays so directly into the hands of all potential and envious enemies of our country. Our hope lies in the fact that there are about 200,000 patriotic Americans who have volunteered for service in state militia and various reserve corps and who, largely at the expense of their own time and money, are receiving training in the arts of national defense."

"It seems but reasonable to hope that a sense of business economy soon will compel the whole nation to demand a more sensible and liberal policy for our protection. All arguments to the contrary notwithstanding, the surest way to live in peace is to be prepared that no one will dare to attack us in war. This method is also the most economical."

Dr. Quain, who is president of the North Dakota Reserve Officers association and holds the rank of colonel in the Medical Reserve Corps, said that the state association, organized a short time ago; has not as yet the enthusiasm displayed by the federal membership desired but from certain that within a short time it will have a one hundred per cent membership.

The question had been raised as to whether the law could be interpreted to permit surplus accruing prior to July 1, 1922, from interest and penalty on taxes, cover collections and similar means, to be used in paying this year's losses, the maximum tax this year not being sufficient to meet losses.

Mr. Shafer, quoting the law, said that the legislature provided that all unexpended balances existing in the hail insurance fund from whatever sources derived must be converted into the surplus fund, until the fund has reached $4,000,000, and if the surplus fund should exceed $5,000,000 the excess levy should be turned back to the department to pay losses the next year. The present surplus of the department is placed at $2,900,000, of which $800,000 was from interest and penalty and over-collection of taxes prior to last July 1.

"Accordingly, in clear and unmistakable language, both the legislature in 1921 and 1922 provided that the total losses occurring in any one year must be paid only out of the funds available from the indemnity acreage tax levied for that year, and that in case such indemnity tax shall be insufficient to pay such losses must be pro-rated," said the opinion of Mr. Shafer.

Use of any part of the $2,900,000 surplus to pay losses in 1923 would be an unlawful diversion of the fund, Mr. Shafer holds.

Erect Gin To Aid Cotton Trade

Sydney, N. S. W., Oct. 30. — New South Wales, which shares with Queensland the honor of pioneering the cotton industry in Australia, now has its own gin, erected at Newcastle under the supervision of the British-Australian Cotton association. The premier and a large preliminary party with other prominent figures were present at the opening.

The cotton industry in New South Wales is new, but it shows promise of a good future. Last year, sufficient seed was supplied to plant more than 7,500 acres. The demand for seed has been widespread and it is estimated that from 20,000 to 30,000 acres will be planted in this state. The cotton acreage in Queensland is considerably larger.

INSURRECTION MONTENEGRO

Paris, Oct. 30. — An insurrection has broken out in Montenegro and is reported to be spreading, says a message from a Bonn newspaper. The correspondent says the insurgents are reported to have descended in the town and that the movement seems connected with the activities of the Macedonian irregulars.

LLOYD GEORGE ACCLAIMED IN PHILADELPHIA

Former English Premier Listens to Welsh Songs While Eating Breakfast

SITS IN FAMOUS CHAIR

Occupies Chair Used by John Hancock when United States Declared Independence

Philadelphia, Oct. 30. — David Lloyd George, stopping here today for a few hours, was cordially received. Arriving shortly after 7 a. m. before the reception committee was on hand he remained aboard his car until 9:30, the scheduled hour for his official entry.

During this period he was informed of the passing away of his friend and former colleague, Andrew Bonar Law, dispatched a message of sympathy to the daughter of the dead statesman and paid a public tribute to him.

At the station 300 singers sang Welsh songs as the former premier ate breakfast and continued to sing as he left his car. The official welcome took place on city hall plaza where Mayor J. Hampton Moore gave him the freedom of the city.

At Independence Hall, to which the British statesman and his party, was driven through crowded lanes of people waving British and American flags, Mr. Lloyd George was invited to sit in the chair occupied by John Hancock when he presided over the meeting at which the declaration of independence was signed and also occupied by George Washington when he presided over the Constitutional Convention.

Lloyd George took the chair for a long time and turning to the assemblage in the declaration room said:

"It is indeed a high honor which you are conferring on me by giving me the distinction of sitting in the chair occupied by one of the great men of the world during one of the great occasions which had a profound effect on my country and which altered the whole course of human history."

STONE THROWN AT PRINCESS

Princess Hermine, ex-Crown Prince's Wife Is Struck

(By the Associated Press.) Doorn, Oct. 30. — A stone thrown by an unknown hand inflicted a severe wound in the ear of Princess Hermine while she was walking in a woods near the ex-kaiser's chateau with her children.

The police arrested several persons but said they did not get the culprit. Wilhelm's entourage and the entire village of Doorn have been greatly excited by the incident.

NORWAY CITY MAY LOSE NAME

London, Oct. 30. — Norway's capital may lose its familiar name of Christiania and may in the future be known by its original name of Oslo. Ten members of the Storthing have submitted a proposal to that effect which according to the Morning Post's correspondent will be adopted by a large majority of the national legislature.

REAR CIVIL TERM

Fargo, Oct. 30. — With 247 civil cases listed and a large number of criminal actions to be tried the November term of district court which opens next week will be one of the busiest in the history of the county.

AGAINST CHANGE

Aberdeen, S. D., Oct. 30. — Aberdeen Commercial club Friday voted against the 400 mile change in the Yellowstone trail petitioned for by Glendive, Mont., business men. They went the trail moved north from Aberdeen to cross the Missouri River and after traversing North Dakota Bad Lands and through Glendive, again join the Yellowstone at Fallon, Mont. Final action rests with the national board. The change would eliminate western South Dakota.

FORMER PRIME MINISTER OF BRITAIN DIES

Andrew Bonar Law Succumbs in London Home; Death Came as Surprise

HAS RESIGNED PLACE

Ill Health Forced Him to Give up Premiership After Succeeding Lloyd George

(By the Associated Press.)

London, Oct. 30. — Andrew Bonar Law, for seven months prime minister of Great Britain, died in his modest London home at 3 o'clock this morning.

Five months ago, on May 20, he resigned the premiership because of a throat malady which for a long time had troubled him. Even then he was reluctant to admit that his career was finished and retained his seat in the House of Commons where he since has made two or three appearances.

Seven days ago Mr. Bonar Law returned from Brighton after a sojourn of seven weeks. His physicians issued a statement to the effect that he contracted a severe chill but the public did not suspect that the end was so near until they read in this morning's newspaper that he had developed septic pneumonia and a condition that gave rise to considerable anxiety, but soon after extra appeared giving the news of his death.

SONS KILLED IN WAR. The ex-premier's daughter and his two surviving sons, Anthony and Richard, were at the bedside when death came. Two of his sons were killed in the world war, a sorrow from which Mr. Bonar Law never recovered.

When the Canadian-Scottishman who was born in New Brunswick on September 16, 1859, has accepted his high office a year ago his friends well knew that his health was precarious. Outside that close circle it was known only that he had contracted a throat complaint which prevented him from speaking.

Mr. Bonar Law was aware of his own condition and promised the Unionist party when he accepted its mandate that he would resign if, and when he found his strength unequal to his work. He gave place to Stanley Baldwin, his chancellor of the exchequer, almost before his new government was fairly organized, retiring to the country to safeguard his failing strength.

Cancer Stricken. No official statement as to the nature of Mr. Bonar Law's illness was ever made, but the public drew an inference from the fact that Dr. Thomas Horder, who was attending him when he resigned and who has since been his physicians, is one of the foremost cancer specialists.

During the interval spent in the country since his retirement from the prime ministry Mr. Bonar Law had been able to take outdoor walks and motorized considered. The report of these activities, which seemed to indicate he was holding his own, had not prepared the public for news of his comparatively rapid decline.

There has not been time for funeral arrangements but there is every reason to believe that it was Mr. Bonar Law's desire to be buried as simply as he lived.

PAYS TRIBUTE

London, Oct. 30. — Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, who succeeded Prime Minister Bonar Law to the premiership, paid the following tribute to him: "For him I am thankful that he has been spared further suffering; for his friends the loss is irreparable. The country will not forget that he sacrificed his life in her service."

Resigns Post. R. K. Wenzel, president of the University of North Dakota Alumni Association, who recently assumed the post of Commissioner of the Workmen's Compensation Bureau, Bismarck, has resigned as president of the alumni association because he believes the best interests of the association require that the president reside in Grand Forks or near there.

PARKER ASKS VOTE AGAINST KU KLUX KLAN

Tells Louisiana Voters to Cast Ballots Against Any Member of Klan

SEEKS CONVICTIONS

Declares Belief That Men Responsible for Mer Rouge Murders Will Be Taken

New Orleans, Oct. 30. — Governor John M. Parker of Louisiana in an address here last night touched on the open hearing at Bastrop last January into masked band activities in Morehouse Parish declaring he hoped and believed "the noose will yet be placed around the necks of men guilty" of the murder of W. J. Daniel and T. F. Richards at Mer Rouge.

The Governor also discussed the present campaign appealing to those "who love their home, their family, state and country not to vote for any man who does not unqualifiedly place himself against the Ku Klux Klan and pledge himself not to knowingly appoint a Klansman to office."

Referring to the alleged murder of Daniel and Richards which he has repeatedly attributed to the Ku Klux Klan, the Governor told how efforts put forth by the state had been "halted at every turn by the Klan when attempts were made to bring the perpetrators of the outrage to justice."

More than a dozen men charged with flagging, warnings of persons to leave the parish and other misdemeanors which grew out of masked band activities in Morehouse prior to the kidnapping of Daniel and Richards in 1922 will go on trial at Bastrop next Monday. Among the defendants are Capt. J. K. Skipwith, exalted cyclops of the Morehouse Klan and Dr. B. M. McKoin, former mayor of Mer Rouge. More serious charges in connection with the Daniel-Richards affair are pending against 18 citizens of the parish. No date for the hearing of these cases has been fixed.

KU KLUX TO BE DEFENSE OF GOV. WALTON

Preparing to Answer Charges Before Senate Court of Impeachment

Oklahoma City, Oct. 30. — Believed to be preparing his defense on the Ku Klux Klan issue Governor Walton moved silently today to meet charges of official conduct when he is brought to trial Thursday before a senate court of impeachment.

The prosecutors, a board of managers from the lower house of the legislature, which drafted the charges, are making final arrangements although no indication came from behind conference room doors as to the probable course of procedure they will follow.

The Governor, it is predicted in political quarters, will make his plea for acquittal on the grounds that the lower house is controlled by the Ku Klux Klan and that it conspired to impeach him through alleged efforts of the secret organization to supplant constitutional government with "invisible government."

He will summon scores of victims of Ku Klux violence, it is understood, to testify in support of his contention that no mob rule had supplanted constituted rule in authority. The prosecution will combat vigorously any such action by the executive, it is said, but his plans have not been announced.

WILL APPOINT PARTICIPANTS IN CONFERENCE

America to be Acquainted With the Desires of the European Nations

ASKED TO APPOINT

United States to be Requested to Name Delegates to sit in Conference

London, Oct. 30. — Great Britain has accepted the terms specified by Premier Poincare of France for a conference of experts to consider the reparations question.

The American government will be acquainted with the willingness of all the countries concerned in the reparations problem to participate in the conference and will be asked immediately to designate its members of the committee of experts.

QUERY DELAYED. Paris, Oct. 30. — (By the Associated Press.) — Some blip in transmission seems to have delayed the query which according to reports from London the British cabinet sent to Premier Poincare as to how the committee of experts to examine Germany's capacity to pay would be composed, when it would meet and which powers would be invited to name delegates. According to the London dispatches the replies to these queries were awaited by the British cabinet, which adjourned until one o'clock this afternoon to consider them.

No communication of the nature indicated had been received by the French foreign office up to 1 p. m.

New York, Oct. 30. — Willis E. Booth, president of the International Chamber of Commerce, and Vice-President of the Chamber of Trade Companies, called today for Paris to convene for a conference of delegates from 22 nations to make recommendations regarding the proposed reparations discussion advocated by Secretary Hughes.

HEALTH RECORD DEFECTS CAUSE MUCH TROUBLE

Heart-aches and Difficulties Caused by Lack of Birth Registration in State

Compiling statistics is drab business, but lack of them in North Dakota has caused hundreds of heart-aches and actual privation, Dr. A. A. Whittemore, State Health Officer, declared today.

"I have in mind the case of the widow of a Civil War veteran in Bonanza county, who has been without an income for years," he said. "Her husband's sole means of support was his pension. When he died she applied for a widow's pension. She was unable to get it because she could not prove the birth of her children and also because no death certificate had been filed of her husband's death. She finally rectified matters, but only after she had been deprived of the support for many months and had employed an attorney to help her."

"Another case is that a Sargent county widow who could not get insurance because her husband's death certificate had been carelessly made out. The insurance company contested the policy. It was necessary for her to employ a lawyer and come to the state health department to get the matter straightened out."

Dr. Whittemore is now engaged in a campaign to obtain accurate and complete registration in every county of births and deaths. Both widows would have been spared difficulties had the matters been properly handled by local officers, he said. In the second case, had the rates reported death certificate come in since the new state health department was established last July, the matter would have been rectified before.

"Birth and death certificates, most important legal documents, said Dr. Whittemore, 'Every person has certain rights which these certificates protect. They establish legal proof of age, parentage, legitimacy. It admits the child to school, it gives the child papers when right age is reached, the rights and privileges of citizenship, civil service examination. They are necessary to establish claims to pensions, soldier compensation and insurance.'

Many ex-soldiers in North Dakota right now cannot get all the compensation the government allows disabled men because of inability to prove their age or the age of their children," he said. Dr. Whittemore urges every citizen to see that his birth certificate is properly on record.

'PERFECT LIFE' TO BE LIVED IN EXPERIMENT

Two Groups of Students at Medical College Start on a Two-Months' Test

Philadelphia, Oct. 29.—Two groups of students of the Hahnemann Medical college and school of science today began living a "perfect life" in a scientific experiment which will last two months.

It is hoped the experiment will lead to the discovery of the real therapeutic value of some common herb hitherto unutilized.

It is also aimed to obtain data which will increase the therapeutic value of a recently discovered remedy.

The men will be under constant observation. For two months they must live from a physician's standpoint "a perfect life." Drugs will be administered to each subject and each will keep a diary in which he will write each hour the effect he feels.

As a result one will be given black pills which taste the same as pills with drugs.

MAN LIVED IN U. S. 25,000 YEARS AGO

Discovery of Remains in California Declared to Prove Recent Theories

(By the Associated Press.)

Santa Barbara, Cal., Oct. 29.—That Paleolithic man lived on the southern California coast at least 25,000 years ago is affirmed by recent excavation of human remains near Santa Barbara is the belief of Dr. Harrington, head of a party of Smithsonian institute investigators which made the find.

Dr. Harrington said that the discovery proved theories formerly held incorrect that at least 14,000 years, maybe 15,000 years, and maybe more, that the Santa Barbara man was an inhabitant of the Pacific Coast of that time is established, according to Dr. Harrington by a number of features of the skulls found here.

Chief of these is the thickness of the skull, the complete absence of forehead, the bony characteristics of the teeth, and the structure of upper and lower jaws which resembles that of the animals of the lower order. The skull of the Santa Barbara man possesses, a pronounced supraorbital ridge without depression between the eyes as does the Neopaleolithic man, the thickness of the skull is more than one-half inch is almost the same.

Canadian Wheat In Mill City

Minneapolis, Oct. 29.—Canadian wheat began sifting through the 30-cent Fordney-McCumber tariff barrier here last week in quantities sufficiently large to indicate foreign competition will face the American crop this year, local grain men said today.

Friday Canadian wheat was bought with alacrity for part of the morning, 350,000 bushels in Fort William and Port Arthur elevators being purchased by local millers. This was a record amount, Saturday buyers in the local pit waited a chance to get more Canadian wheat, but the price was a point or two too high. Local millers today declared they will buy Canadian wheat whenever its price is such they can pay the duty and get it here at a price equal to or lower than that for American wheat.

VISITORS TO CITY RECENTLY IN AUTO SMASH

Machine of Glendive Chamber of Commerce Party Wrecked Near Dickinson

The Glendive auto trail boosters, who visited Mandan and Bismarck last week with the proposal to re-route the Yellowstone National Trail through North Dakota, narrowly escaped death in a serious automobile accident while en route home, according to information here today. While four miles west of Dickinson Friday one car, a sedan, began to slide and slide. It slid across a bridge, made a nose dive down an embankment 15 feet high, rolled over twice, and landed on its wheels facing in a direction opposite to that it had been traveling. Every window was smashed, several doors jammed and the machine otherwise damaged. Except for general bruising, members of the party escaped injury. In the car were H. A. Sample of the Hughes Oil Company, John F. Murphy of the Jordan hotel, C. L. Brenner of the Brenner Drug Company and Bert Johnson of the Glendive Drug company. The party, according to information from Glendive, are enthusiastic over the visitors to Bismarck, Mandan, Dickinson and other cities in connection with the proposed trail change.

T. R. PROGRAM HELD AT PRISON

A Roosevelt Day program, arranged by Warden J. J. Lee, was given at the state penitentiary Saturday night. Governor Nestos addressed the convicts in the assembly hall, and "Prof. Happy," humorous lecturer of the American Child Health association, also spoke. Miss Hazel Nelson sang, and led in community singing. Guests included H. F. Goodard and J. A. Eichen, members of the board of administration, and wives, Misses Minnie J. and Hazel Nelson.

DELINQUENCY IN CHILDREN IS DISCUSSED

Serious Problem Is Created by Increasing Delinquency,
Kiwanians Told

JUDGE NUESSELE TALKS

Jefferson Steiner, of Washburn Lignite Coal Company,
Gives Views of City

The seriousness of increasing juvenile delinquency was driven home with emphasis by Supreme Court Justice W. L. Nuessele before the Kiwanis club at its weekly luncheon today.

That there has been an increase is borne out by reform institutions, educational heads, juvenile judges and other agencies, the speaker told the Kiwanians. Perhaps, he added, there is not a greater increase than there is in crime among adults.

The difference between a good boy, and a bad boy, or a good man and a bad man, Judge Nuessele told his auditors, is "the turning of a hand" at sometime or other in the person's life.

"Every man," he said, "ought to live so that his life would be a good example for the children who look up to him. And every man, no matter who he may be, has some child who is looking to him. It is a matter of individual responsibility."

Without seeking to ascribe what may be the manifold reasons for the present condition Judge Nuessele said that if he could suggest anything it probably would be the American home.

There has been a decline of discipline in the home, he said. Most parents desire that their children avoid the difficulties and tribulations that they endured; and in endeavoring to make the life of the child easier, often an injustice is done him, he said. Children, he said, are not subjected to the proper discipline in the home.

Judge Nuessele told the Kiwanians that the problem of juvenile delinquency caused him more concern than any other problem before him on the district court bench. Juvenile delinquency, he said, was not confined to homes of the poor nor to any district, but as often is found in the best neighborhoods and among the children of leading citizens.

He suggested that the condition may be in part a result of the indifference of the American public to the consequences of crime and violation of law. He pointed out that in 1921 there were between 8,000 and 10,000 murders in the United States while in England and Wales, with nearly half the population, the number was less than 100. The convictions for murder in England and Wales, he said, were far greater in proportion than in the United States. Judge Nuessele also referred to the lack of interest shown by parents in education. While, he said, miseducation may wreck the life of a child, few parents visit the public schools, know the teachers or consider what the children are being taught.

He suggested the Book of Proverbs as containing the best advice ever written in the handling of children, and declared that we would not have less juvenile delinquency until we have better homes.

Speaks On City
Jefferson Steiner, treasurer of the Washburn Lignite Coal Company who recently came here from Minneapolis and established offices, spoke briefly upon invitation of chairman of the day Ben Tillotson. Asked to state his impressions of Bismarck, Mr. Steiner told the Kiwanians that it would be somewhat of a task to resort to criticism and he believed his hearers did not wish to hear praise. In passing, he mentioned that one thing that occurred to him since moving into the residence district was the fact that there was an electric light only on every other corner. It had also been brought to his attention, he said, that there appeared not sufficient capacity for providing proper treatment for charity patients in hospitals.

In connection, he said that there appeared to be a feeling that the great charitable institutions of the east often neglect the west. He communicated this feeling to a friend in the east, he said, and the response was that the Rockefeller Foundation was willing to spend several hundred thousand dollars in the Northwest if needed to relieve distress.

Mr. Steiner recalled the recent message of Major Stanley Washburn to people in many cities of the state to have faith in North Dakota. It is sound doctrine, he said. Worthless optimism is not needed, but a recognition of the resources of the state and an underlying faith is necessary, he said.

Birthdays of Dr. C. O. Robinson and Schuyler Dietz were celebrated, Dr. A. M. Brandt informing Kiwanians of the secrets of the life of the former and J. B. Smith reading the history of the latter. The attendance prize went to Justice Sveinbjorn Johnson.

NEW SOCIAL BODY FORMED IN BISMARCK

United Gobblers Plans to Conduct Social Club For Its Member Here

Organization of the United Gobblers, a social organization, has been launched in Bismarck, with the intention ultimately of extending the order not only in this state but in other states. The organization is started, according to Oscar Wold, to fill a need for a social club. It is planned to conduct the clubrooms on the plan of Y. M. C. A. clubrooms and to make them especially attractive to young men, he said.

A state charter has been applied for, with the following named as organizers: Thomas Corbitt, W. P. Belk, George Ellis, Oscar Wold, O. E. Knefer and H. L. Kirklingburg. The statement of principles includes "truth and honor and loyalty to state and government," no distribution because of political differences or religious creeds, with a motto of "one for all and all for one."

It is proposed to establish club and reading rooms, give dances occasionally, entertainments and render programs. The organization will be a clean and high class place, Mr. Wold said.

One hundred charter members have been signed up, and 20 organizers now are out to increase the number.

INSTANTLY KILLED
Dickinson, Oct. 29.—Bud Corneli, Jr., 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bud Corneli, Sr., of Marmarth, was instantly killed Tuesday by his school coach, Arthur Knutson, 17, while hunting ducks in a boat on the Marmarth reservoir. Both boys were seated, Corneli in front and Knutson in the rear. When the ducks arose from the water, Knutson aimed and as he pulled the trigger, Corneli arose to his feet in direct line with the gun, the discharge shooting away the upper portion of Corneli's skull. Death was instantaneous.

MARKET NEWS CANADA WHEAT IMPORTS HERE

Causes Weakening Tone on Chicago Board of Trade

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Attention to continued imports of Canadian wheat into the United States, duty paid, had a bearish effect on the Chicago wheat market today soon after the opening. Some show of firmness at the start resulted in an upturn in Liverpool quotations. On the other hand the attitude of France on German reparations counted somewhat as a bearish influence. The opening which varied from unchanged figures to 1-2 to 1-4 cents higher with Dec. $2.05-3-8 to 1-2 and May $1.11-1-8 to 1-4 to 3-8 cents was followed by a moderate general setback.

Subsequently rallies failed to hold. A liberal increase of United States visible supply total put bulls at a disadvantage at the end of the day. The close was steady 3-8 to 1-2 to 1-2 to 5-8, net lower with December $1.05-3-4 to 7-8 cents to $1.05-7-8 and May $1.10-5-8 to $1.10-5-8 to 3-4.

Many Attend Rites For Geo. Dolan

A large crowd attended the last funeral rites held for George Dolan who died last week at St. Mary's Cathedral this morning with Rev. Fr. Slag officiating. Old friends were present to pay a final tribute to their friend and many beautiful floral offerings bore mute testimony of grief stricken friends.

After the impressive service in the church the mourners followed their departed friends to St. Mary's cemetery where he was laid to rest.

THE Great American Home A Real Home

Who can deny that the home is the birthplace of character, social order and ethics of civilization?

Agreeing to this fact, we can also say that our lives are governed, to a certain extent, by the environment in which we live. We are a people of temperament; varied in nature, but susceptible to general classification.

Comfort to mind and body is one of the conditions commonly sought after. The more nearly this situation is perfected, the more people of even temperament you will find.

Going back to environment, the living room, above all, should be harmonious to insure rest and comfort. Furniture, rugs, draperies, pictures, lamps and etc., should balance, and enhance the beauty of the room.

We are dealers in these things, and ultimately dealers in your comfort.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

IN 1953
Women 30 years from now will not be doing any housework, predicts Professor Ernest Groves. This has been predicted before—that, at least in cities, everybody eventually will live in big apartment houses run like hotels, with the housework done by maids, cooks, porters and laundresses employed by the hotel-home.
This would be an application, to housework, of the cooperative principles we already use in government.
However, our jazz era may have a reaction in the form of a general desire to get back to nature and the simple life. Airplanes could make this possible, people living far out in the country, father flying several hundred miles to work. In which case, there'd be more housework for ma than there is now—and Professor Groves would be all wrong in his prediction.

Groves expresses this interesting size-up of the woman of today: "In spite of all this so-called freedom, women are still drudges and slaves to their homes. They are so busy with housekeeping that they have no time to instruct their children properly, and no time to be companions as well as housekeepers to their husbands. When 40 comes, they feel that life has gone from them."
True in many cases, undoubtedly. But when a wife really loves her husband, and has children, housework is not drudgery and slavery in the long run, though mighty monotonous at times.
Mother gets infinite joy toiling to make her family happy. That's one reason no sacrifice is too great for her. Science, of course, is unable to comprehend this. Science is baffled by anything it can't measure in kilowatt hours.

CHEAP FUEL
Edison backs Steinmetz in predicting that we are close to the day when coal—instead of being shipped to consumers at great transportation cost and effort—will be converted into electricity at the mines.
The coal would run big engines, which in turn would operate generators of current to be sent over high-tension wires to a country on an electrical basis.
That would make life easier—simply turning the switch for cooking and heating. Not so easy, really to get such a system into operation at a price that would put the coal dealer out of business.

A different solution of the coal problem was predicted recently by Floyd W. Parsons, making a speech to gas manufacturers. Parsons thinks this: "Eventually every ton of coal mined in the United States will have all heat units converted into gas, which will be distributed through pipes to homes, mills and factories."
We may pass through a Gas Age before we reach the Electric Age. Already there are more than nine million gas meters (perpetual motion machines, according to Rodger Dolan) in America. In the last 12 months, gas companies added 400,000 customers to their books.

There is difference of opinion, as to whether coal at the mines should be converted into gas or electricity. But it's almost unanimously agreed by economists and other experts, that shipment of coal to consumers is too costly. A startling change is coming here. Our generation may live to see it.

NIGHT LIFE ON WANE
There won't be a cabaret on Broadway two years from now, predicts Sanford H. Cohen, resigning as United States district attorney in New York City. Cohen closed a lot of the famous night-life resorts himself, for selling hooch.
Less encouraging to the prohibitionist is the story from Log Angeles: A woman reports to federal agents that a bootlegger rang her bell, gave her a card and told her just to hang it in the window when she wanted a case of firewater. It weighs as much as ice, but doesn't seem as heavy to handle.

AFTER AUTUMN WINTER
Summer is gone, autumn almost, winter coming. Soon Thanksgiving, then wonderful Christmas presents to give, what New Year resolutions to make. First of the month, bills due. And so on, year after year, generation after generation, same old routine.

You can foresee nine-tenths of the future without crossing silver over the palm of a fortune teller. Life is pretty much a clockwork proposition. Actors and costumes change, but the plot of life is much the same in all generations.

THEATRICAL ART
Strange things are happening to theatrical art, which remained virtually unchanged for many centuries.
We have movies, where the audience sees a play without actually seeing or hearing the actors.
Also we have radio-drama, the audience hearing the actors without seeing them.
The two—movies and radio-drama—might be combined into a novel sort of entertainment. Maybe this will be the eventual "talking movie."

CARS IN EAST
Japan had only 12,500 licensed autos before the earthquake. Inadequate roads. On the other hand, we Americans have over 13 million autos.
Three-fourths of the cars sold in Japan are Fords. A man loses his social standing over there if he drives his own car. Custom decrees that he must have a chauffeur.
East is East and West is West, all right. If the twain ever do meet, a wide gap to bridge.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Barber, barber, shave a wig. How many hairs to make a wig? Four and twenty, that's enough! Give me a wig, a wig, a wig!"

Nancy and Nick looked to see who was singing, and you may imagine their surprise when a thin little red pig turned the corner.

"Hello!" he grunted when he saw them. "When did you come to Dixie Land?"

"Yesterday," answered Nick. "When did you come?"

"About six months ago," said the little pig. "I was born here."

"My goodness!" exclaimed Nancy. "You aren't very big. You look thin! Have you been sick?"

"No, sir, I haven't," declared the little red pig indignantly. "Never felt better in my life! It's my nature to be thin. I'm called Reddy Razor Back. Because my backbones sticks up like a razor, I suppose. Aren't all pigs like me?"

"I should say not!" said Nick. The pigs in Squeaky-Moo Land are as fat as butter. They're so fat they look like sausages!"

The little red pig shuddered. "Ugh!" he squealed. "Don't say that word, please. Bacon and wieners and ham and pork are likewise never mentioned in polite pig society in Dixie Land."

"I shouldn't think you would need to worry," spoke up Nancy. "You're too thin to—"

"You may as well say it," sighed the little pig. "I know what you mean. I'm too thin for the butcher to bother with, you were going to say. That's just the trouble. I'm not. Down here in Dixie Land they say, 'The nearer the bone the sweeter the meat,' and my meat's all piggy near to my bones. I try as hard as I can to get fat so my meat will be farther away from my bones, and therefore not so sweet, but it does seem that the more I eat the thinner I get. Oh, me! Oh, me! I'm thinking of going on a journey."

"What would you do and where would you go?" asked Nick.

"I was thinking of turning into a barber," answered Reddy Razor Back. "I saw that verse I was singing about barbers in a book that the children had. Or I might go to market. I saw where one pig had done that. It was in the same book that the barber said 'I am a pig'."

I sometimes wonder, little Marquise, what you think of all these modern complexities. In that last and only letter which you left to the women who should find the hidden drawer, you only told me one secret and that was that "the gay little Marquise was beloved by a king."
I wish you had left some more of those letters which you spoke about. I would have known then if you would understand, for some way I felt sure your spirit hovered about this desk and you take interest in me and mine.
In fact the other day when I put a little bundle of letters within this secret receptacle, I seemed to feel that you had placed upon me the seal of your approval because I had given to Ruth some of that money I felt was mine—at least it wasn't Jack's. After I had given Jack the six thousand dollars, I divided the other three in half and persuaded Ruth to set herself up in a modest lingerie establishment in which I am sure she is going to do very well.
Of course I told her that and she has insisted that she shall give me one-tenth of all her profits until she has returned it and 10 per cent interest. Of course you, little Marquise, know that whether she pays to have her hair done or whether I have to get the money the other day but decided not to do so until I had heard from Alice, who by the way is strangely silent.
I wish more than inclined to do this because, dear little Marquise, I can't tell even you just what happened when I returned and gave that money to Jack. I sometimes wonder if when anyone does something that he considers a great deal, the reaction is not always disappointing.
I hardly know Jack since he has had this trouble. He is brusque and irritable and nervous and once or

AT THE MOVIES

Another William Fox special production will be given its local premiere at the Capitol theater tonight when "The Town That Forgot God," a melodramatic story of small town life, will open a two days' engagement.

Directed by Harry Millarde, who staged the famous drama of mother love, "Over the Hill," "The Town That Forgot God" promises an entertainment of unusual merit and heretofore a cast of screen artists worthy of special mention.

What probably is the most sensational storm and flood scene ever shown upon the screen forms the climax of this photodrama, according to advance reports, a whole city being demolished by the rushing torrent and terrific wind.

While the storm and flood scenes were being photographed a number of cameramen, stationed at various points around the area to be flooded, narrowly escaped drowning when the platform upon which they were standing were washing away by the rushing current. The photographers, their cameras and all were caught in the torrent, it is announced.

A not-the least of screen artists portray the various difficult roles in this sensational story of rural life, including Jane Thomas, who has played featured roles in a number of William Fox special productions; Ben Grauer, a youngster who started his career with David Warfield in his recent "The Return of Peter Grimm"; Warren Kroch, Harry Benham, Grace Barton, Harry Healy, Edwin Dennison, James Devine and others of equal note.

"The Town That Forgot God" is from a scenario by Paul H. Sloane, who wrote the scenarios or a number of recent Fox successes.

Considerable of this land has been sold to people of the immediate communities who have faith in the future of the country and wish to extend their holdings. More has been sold to farmers from Minnesota, Iowa, and other states, who, wishing to escape high rents and high taxes see in the Slope country their "Land of Canaan."

The fact that the Slope has proved its adaptability to the verification methods and that corn has come into its own as a staple crop has brought about this change.

From now on there will be a greater influx of residents into western North Dakota than ever before. The Slope looms as a veritable promised land to the rent and burdened tenant of the east.—Dickinson Press.

Cobb Receives Cornell Appointment

F. E. Cobb, formerly in the horticulture department of the Northern Great Plains Field station at Mandan, has been appointed an instructor in forestry of the extension department of Cornell University at Ithaca, N. Y. Mr. Cobb was connected with the U. S. station here for some six years as an assistant of Robert Wilson, chief of the shelter belt tree experimentation work. While Captain Wilson was with the North Dakota regiment at the Mexican border and in France, Mr. Cobb was in complete charge of the work for three years. He left here last fall and has since been taking post-graduate work in forestry at Yale University and completing his course has been given an unusually fine position at Cornell.

Miss Margaret Schrick who has been making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Fred McKendry has left for Seattle, Wash., where she will make her future home with an uncle, Wm. Bannister.

Mrs. Alfred Duval and children arrived in Mandan for a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Murray the end of last week when enroute to their home in Portland, Ore., after visiting with relatives in Crookston, Minn.

Mrs. W. H. Stutsman has returned from Fargo where she attended the meeting of the department chairman, and officers of the North Dakota Federation of Music. While there she was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hallenborg, former residents of Carson.

G. L. Heegaard, president and general manager of the Mandan Mercantile company who has been in Mandan and the Missouri Slope for the past two weeks on business in connection with the branch has left for his home in Minneapolis.

pro-rating them as the legislature provided, all that needs to be done is to imitate a law making the proposed changes, to be voted on at the March primaries and if adopted by the people pay the balance of the hail losses in the early part of the spring. This would certainly seem to me to be the wisest and most economical way of solving this problem.

BUSINESS IN RURAL TOWNS IS IMPROVED

barley, and oats were marketed considerably in excess of what might be considered a normal marketing for these grains, having due regard to the size of the crops this year and last, and the amount marketed in September a year ago, and rye was marketed at less than would be considered normal when judged by the same tests. Wheat came to market in somewhat more than normal quantities because the estimated wheat crop of this year is but 84 per cent of that of a year ago, whereas September receipts of wheat this year were 71 per cent of a year ago.

"There has been no difficulty in obtaining railroad equipment this year for the purpose of shipping grain. Therefore market conditions can more easily influence shipments than in recent years. The movement of corn has been negligible owing to the fact that farm stocks were practically exhausted this year, and new corn had not begun to move during September.

Livestock Run Big
"The fall run of livestock is well under way with receipts at South St. Paul much larger in the case of hogs and sheep and slightly smaller in the case of cattle and calves compared with a year ago. The total run of all livestock measured by number of head is about 15 per cent greater than last September and prices show mixed tendencies, increases being shown only in the case of hogs as compared with the preceding month.

"Business activity in the cities of this district during September, as reflected by individual debits at banks increased slightly as compared with August but the increase was only one-third of what should normally take place at this time of the year. In fact, the total volume reached the lowest point shown in a September during the last five years except September, 1921. This slowing down in urban business was brought about largely by the slump in flour milling production due to a smaller wheat crop to be milled, as well as a decline in mining output, and a less than seasonal increase in retail trade in the cities, smaller shipments by lumber manufacturers and mixed conditions in wholesale trade. However, there was a very satisfactory increase in the shipments of linseed products owing to the very large volume of flax moving at this time.

"The member banks in this district as well as this Federal Reserve Bank experienced a loan expansion which is seasonal for September. The demand was not so great, however, as to make any substantial increase in interest rates charged customers by member banks."

Entertains at Hallowe'en Bridge

A hallowe'en bridge was given by Miss Mildred Eger at her apartment in the Tribune last night in compliment to her cousin, Miss Lois Hartman of Sioux Falls, S. D., who recently came to Bismarck to accept a position in the capital. Four tables were in play with the hopes going to Miss Hildon-Simonson and Mrs. C. Brewster. During the evening luncheon was served. Table decorations were charmingly carried out in hallowe'en colors. Assisting the hostess was Mrs. E. T. Beatt.

Joint Hostesses at Hallowe'en Party

Mrs. Harriet Pearson and Miss Gene Anderson were joint hostesses at a delightful hallowe'en party last evening at the home of Mrs. R. W. Olson. The guests who appeared in charming costumes appropriate to the occasion were received by ghosts who conducted them to points of interest before leading them to the scene of the party. Jack o'lanterns and beautiful orange and black hallowe'en decorations about the fireplace formed a beautiful setting for the party. At the close of the amusement features of the evening which consisted of dancing and games, a three course luncheon was served, places being laid for 18. A large vase of yellow chrysanthemums occupied the center of the dining room table while to either streamers extending from the electric lights were attached place cards and favors for the guests. Clifford Hamel of Billings, Mont. was an out of town guest.

Mrs. Keller Attends Loyalty Luncheon

Mrs. H. F. Keller will represent the local Baptist church at the Loyalty luncheon to be held in Fargo this evening for the Baptist women of the state missionary conference. This time national representatives of the foreign and home societies, the foreign missionary society and he mission to the Indians will be present. During the business sessions which will be held today, addresses will be given by these leaders. Miss Grace Panington, missionary from Barma, India, will be one of the speakers.

The Loyalty meetings are being held in 60 cities in the United States, one being held in Grand Forks last night. The local Baptist church is to hold the near future luncheon at "Echo" luncheon.

Popular New Short Fur Coats Have Blouse Effect

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

Fur fashions progress but it sometimes seems that the progression is in cycles. The fashion of two years ago was for short coats and that of last year was for long. This season the short coat has become popular again and is making a bid for the favor of well-dressed women. In entirely new lines and combinations of fur.

As in the long coats of the present mode these are very simple in line and generally have a single fastening at the side. The most popular type fits snugly about the hips, giving a blouse effect. Both choker and shawl collar styles are shown and either type is good style. Soft furs such as squirrel, mole, chinchilla and brown or white ermine seem to have the preference and are generally trimmed with another fur in contrasting color.

The coat shown in the illustration gives a splendid idea of one of the prevailing styles. It is of broad-tail, with collar and cuffs of squirrel. The wide band at the hips fastens with a flat fur button. The sleeves have a slight bell shape and are made knuckle length.

S. F. Hollingsworth, district superintendent.

KITCHEN CUPBOARD

By NELLIE MAXWELL

PICKLING TIME

DELICIOUS pickle that is well liked by those who are fond of alive oil is:

Cil Pickles.—Take one hundred small cucumbers, finger-length in size, three medium-sized onions, two quarts of vinegar, two-thirds of a cupful of mustard seed, one tablespoonful of celery seed, one tablespoonful of freshly ground pepper, one cupful of olive oil. Slice the well-washed cucumbers without peeling, add the sliced onions—a small onion will make a better looking pickle—one may use a dozen or more; sprinkle with salt and set aside to stand over night. In the morning rinse off the salt and drain the cucumbers and onions. Place in a jar, add the seasonings, oil and vinegar, mix well, let stand for a day or two, then put into jars and seal. Keep in a cool place.

Cucumber Catsup.—Peel and grate ripe cucumbers, squeezing out as much of the juice as possible. To a pint of the unsqueezed pulp, add a cupful of good strong vinegar, a grated onion, one red pepper finely chopped and salt to make palatable. If the pepper is not hot add a half-teaspoonful of cayenne pepper. Bottle and seal. This is delicious with fish in the winter when such foods are high in price.

Wild Grapes With Orange Rind.—Put the peeling of two oranges through the meat chopper, add three times as much water as ground peel, let stand over night. Simmer for two hours the next day and let stand again over night. Simmer one quart of wild grapes, adding all the green ones. Put through a fruit press to remove seeds. Combine the pulp with the orange rind and to every three cupfuls of the mixture add two and one-half cupfuls of sugar; simmer until a jelly-like then pour into glasses.

Mustard Pickles.—To a gallon of vinegar add one-half cupful of mustard and one cupful of salt, two cupfuls of brown sugar. Mix, cold and drop in the well-washed cucumbers as they are gathered; cover with horseradish leaves.

Fargo, Oct. 30.—The fire which last night charred the wooden bridge which carries the Great Northern tracks over the Tenth street subway and licked the south side of the Standard Oil warehouse in damage estimated at about $25,000. It began at midnight or soon thereafter.

Of this loss, $25,000 was to the railroad, according to a rough estimate by William Hindman, in charge of the Great Northern Construction here. Damage to the oil company warehouse possibly will amount to $800 and to the stock $700, Ed L. Packard, manager of the Fargo territory, estimated.

Mr. Hindman had trains running over one track on the south side of the bridge early today and opened another track shortly after noon. Great Northern trains were running in schedule, according to officials.

Could You Replace Your Home?

The house that cost $5,000 in 1913 would cost nearly $10,000 to replace today. If you have not doubled your fire insurance over what it was in 1913 your protection has been practically cut in half. If you should have a fire, your insurance would go but a short way toward meeting the cost of replacement. Don't take such a chance.

About 175 Attend District Meeting Of Eastern Star

About 175 Eastern Stars from Bismarck, Linton and Washburn were present at the district meeting of the organization which opened here Saturday afternoon with Mrs. E. D. Fogel of Linton, district deputy, presiding.

An address of welcome was given by Mrs. Clifton Johnson, worthy matron of the Bismarck chapter and the response was given by the associate matron of Linton. The Washburn chapter was represented by 21 members and the Linton chapter by 19 members. At the afternoon meeting Miss Exline Schulz sang a solo which was received with hearty applause by the audience.

At the evening business session, Miss Emma Taubert, school instructor in music, gave a piano solo and Mrs. Richard Tracy gave a vocal solo.

Mrs. Ployhar was presented with a gift from the district and Mrs. Fogel, district deputy, with a gift from the Linton and Bismarck chapters.

Covers were laid for 175 at the 6:30 o'clock dinner at the Temple in the evening. Beautiful bouquets of flowers ornamented the long tables about the room.

Miss Sundquist Becomes Bride In Minneapolis

The marriage of Miss Mayme K. Sundquist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sundquist of 818 Main street, and Raymond G. McLaughlin of Bismarck, son of Mrs. Emma McLaughlin of Chicago, Ill., took place Saturday at the rectory of Father Pillager of Minneapolis, Minn. Attend the couple were Mr. and Mrs. A. E. May of Minneapolis.

The bride who was raised in Bismarck and received her education in the local schools, is a well known and popular member of the young set. She took her business training in the St. Paul, Minn., Business College and for the past five years has been employed as a stenographer in the office of the North Dakota Highway Commission. The bridegroom, traveling representative of the Quaker Oat Company of Chicago, has been making his headquarters in Bismarck and covering this part of the country for the past seven years.

After a honeymoon in the Twin Cities Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin will return to Bismarck where they will make their home until January when they will move to Fargo.

Honor Mrs. Harriss At Farewell Luncheon

Mrs. H. Styles Harriss was honored with a 1 o'clock luncheon at the Grand Pacific hotel Saturday by the ladies of the Bismarck Municipal club. Covers were laid for a party of 25. The luncheon was a farewell for Mrs. Harriss who is leaving the first part of this week for Grand Forks, her future home. The honor guest was presented with a pair of jade green candlesticks and candles to match by her friends. Mrs. Richard A. Tracy made the presentation in behalf of the club.

HOSTESSES AT BRIDGE

THE CRY FOR WHOLE WHEAT

A wider food intelligence means an increasing demand for whole wheat products. Modern milling processes do not produce whole wheat flour. Shredded Wheat Biscuit is 100 per cent whole wheat, and so thoroughly cooked that every particle of each crisp, tasty shred of flavory baked wheat is digested. Contains all the food you need, and all the bran you need to prevent constipation and its kindred ailments. Two Biscuits with hot milk and a little cream make a warm, nourishing meal.

Exhausting coughs that wear you out—you can stop them quickly

Day and night a cough wastes your strength and steadily paves the way for more serious and perhaps permanent complications.

Yet you can stop it quickly with Dr. King's New Discovery. It breaks up coughs by stimulating the mucous membranes to throw off the secretions that are clogging them. Harmlessly and effectively the throat and chest spasms are quieted and the irritation that is causing the cough promptly clears away. It has an agreeable taste. For more than fifty years, thousands of fatalities all over the country have relied upon it. Get a bottle today. All druggists.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

A NEW ASPECT ON WHEAT
It has not been expected by those who have urged diversification of farm crops in North Dakota only after a careful study of the situation, that the time would come in the near future when North Dakota would cease to raise wheat. Wheat still is raised to some extent in the most diversified sections of the lower middle west. In those sections the yields on ground used for nearly a century often exceeds the yields per acre in North Dakota. The yield has been increased through artificial means, careful selection and methods of seeding.

North Dakota's spring wheat has enjoyed wide fame. What perhaps will come in the future is that North Dakota farmers, diversifying, will still plant a goodly acreage of wheat but will endeavor to increase both the quality and yield per acre through various means. In this connection J. G. Lykken, supervising engineer of the North Dakota State Mill and Elevator, emphasizes this view.

Mr. Lykken points out that hard spring wheat in the United States is limited chiefly to North Dakota and parts of Montana. Southern, softer wheats contain from less than 8 to 11 per cent gluten. Northern spring wheat has a gluten content from 11 to 17 per cent. Gluten is, he says, an elastic, gum-like substance which imparts to the bread dough its raising qualities. Therefore, wheat with a high gluten content is sought by millers, and a premium often is paid for it. On the other hand, the production of durum—commonly called durum wheat—has increased in North Dakota.

Mr. Lykken points out, is not wheat in any sense of the word. It is not used for making flour, nor is it mixed in bread-making flour. It is ground into a granular material called semolina used in the manufacture of spaghetti, macaroni, noodles and similar products. Bran and feed products made from durum are sold at a discount.

North Dakota in 1922 produced 40,000,000 bushels of durum. This amount, Mr. Lykken asserts, is three-fourths more than is consumed in the entire United States in one year. With such an over-production it is natural that the durum price should greatly decrease.

One of the chief reasons for raising durum, of course, is the fact that the ravages of rust are declared to be avoided. North Dakota has a real problem in the choice of growing of hard spring wheat and durum. It will be foolish to produce more durum than is consumed in the various products made from it. Unless the market for such products can be developed, durum production patently should be restricted. But if North Dakota can raise the finest spring wheat, wheat which will command a premium, surely the problem is not so much one of over-production as it is of raising a goodly yield, freeing it from the deadly peril of rust and endeavoring to raise the quality.

YOUR TIME
Doctors notice a steady increase in the number of men who break down between 40 and 50, when they should be in their prime. Breakdown comes three ways—physically, mentally or in the ability to forge ahead and reap the harvest of past effort.

Why do so many men break down prematurely? The answer is partly that civilization is constantly becoming more complex with each year bringing more and more demands on the individual's spare time.

Each year it becomes harder for a man to earn a good living for himself and family. He goes through his workday at high nervous tension, speeded up, giving his last ounce of strength. This is particularly true of men who work with their brains.

Father goes home at night, fagged out. What he needs, to keep him fit and help nature recuperate his exhausted cells, is complete relaxation with plenty of fresh air and little noise.

But so-called "social duties" crowd in. Father finds he is expected to dress up and go calling on friends. Or maybe it's to a movie. Or to lodge. Or to a meeting of some committee on which he is serving as Fifth Assistant Deputy Peanut Inspector. And so on.

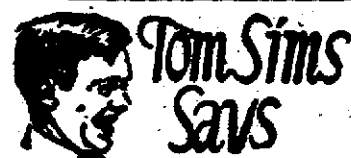

Before he realizes, it's around midnight when he wants to be in bed, exhausted, with an hour or two less for sleep than he should have. A man can stand this for a while. But in a matter of years even a strong constitution begins cracking under the strain.

Too many social duties. Too much gadding about. Too little leisure time devoted to relaxation and rest. The candle has been kept burning at both ends. Father weakens, falls fagged out prematurely.

ADVICE TO FARMERS
Go east, young farmer, go east. This seems to be the new slogan, according to Department of Agriculture. It notices a decided movement of western farmers to the abandoned farms of eastern states. Some of these farms are so rocky that seed has to be planted with a shotgun. But they're nearer the market. That's important, highly, with transportation charges so high. History, in the long run, is the record of business. Even Columbus, in discovering America, was merely a scout seeking a short-cut trade route—cheaper transportation.

KEEPING TAXES DOWN
The county commissioners are reported to be making an effort to reduce the budget for next year to a point equal to or less than last year. If a taxpayer were writing to the board he probably would end his letter very sincerely by stating that "anything you can do along this line will be greatly appreciated."

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Good evening, my dears?" The Twins looked around but could see nobody. The voices seemed to come from the pond in front of them. But nothing appeared but a dim light, which glowed over the water.

"Good evening!" said Nancy. "But we can't see anybody. Where are you and who are you?"

"Guess!" said the voice. At the same time the light came nearer. Suddenly a thought popped into Nick's head. It was a story he had heard about a little boy called Peter Pan, who went to a place called Never-Never Land and met a fairy who wasn't anything but a spot of light.

"Are you Tinker-Bell, the fairy?" he cried. Are you Peter Pan's fairy?"

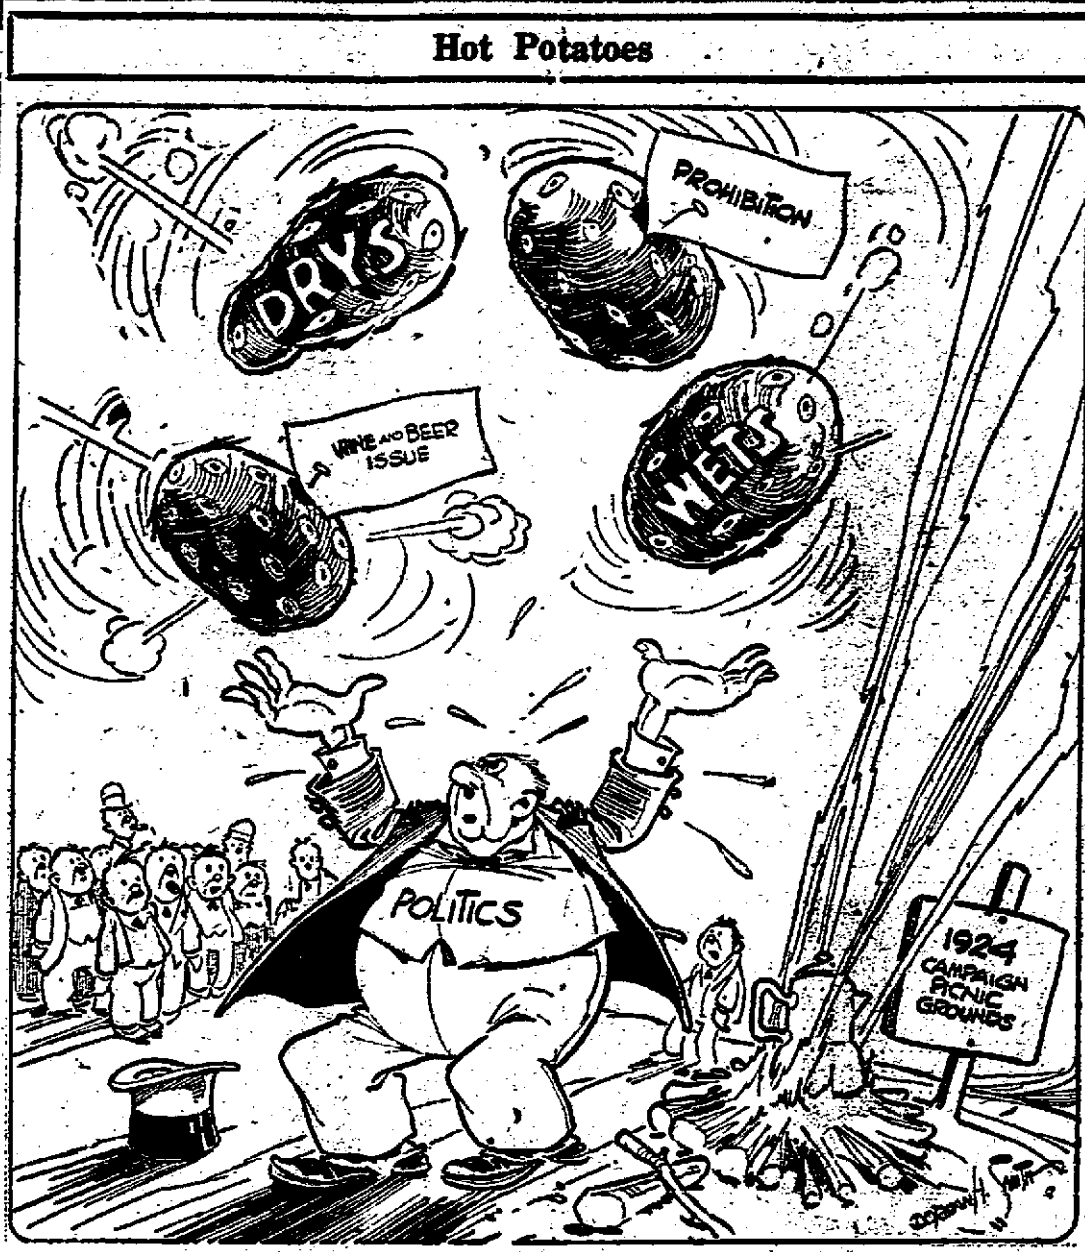

"No, not that, either," came the voice. "I'll tell you who I am. I'm called Will of the Wisp. I live in Dixie Land, but I never stay in the same place long. I move around from place to place in a boat and I always carry a lantern. I'm sort of a night policeman because I see that all the water folk are safe. Can you see me now?"

Very slowly there appeared to the Twins' astonished eyes, an odd little man in a queer little boat.

"Most people cannot see me," he nodded, "but I was sure you could, because you have magic along. But you must never try to come any nearer to me than you are now or I will disappear. I always keep a certain distance away from mortals. Another thing! Dry land is not good for my health. I must live where there is water, and so I stay on ponds and swamps and marshes in my boat."

"You are different from other fairies," said Nancy. "We know ever so many and none of them are like you."

"That's the best compliment I've had since my own hundredth birthday," he declared. "And I'm a thousand years old. Fairies are like that. They are different. They aren't like you mortals. Well, that's enough about me, kiddies. Who are you?"

The Tangle

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO SYDNEY CARTON.

I do not know what I would do, old man, if I didn't have you for a safety valve. Although you are very apt to take me to task and call me everything from a scoundrel to a fool, somehow you still say all these things in a friendly spirit.

I wonder if you have ever realized how hard it is for a man to accept a great favor gracefully. I guess you do because you have known me intimately and even when I have accepted favors from your hands, Syd, I know that I have not been particularly gracious about it.

I presume it is because to receive hurts my egotism. I cannot stand patronage of any kind, whether it comes from the open hand of love, the kind intentions of friendship or the flattering interest of my superiors.

Of course I knew just what I was asking Leslie to do for me. No one knows better than myself how hard it was for a proud girl like Leslie to go to her family and ask for money to help her out of a scrape. I am sure she did not care about the mere financial part of the transaction. I knew the thing that hurt her, and hurt her in a way I am afraid I shall never be able to heal, was that she had to confess to her family that her husband did not measure up.

And because I knew that I didn't measure up, Syd, I was particularly nasty and arrogant in making a point of her doing this contemptible thing. Then, when she went—what I made the woman I love devotedly do something that must have nearly broken her heart—and she came back to me and laid the money in my hand, still there was something in me that made me childish and seemingly ungrateful.

Leslie came in on the morning train of the day that old Bullock told me he had determined to have the books examined. "Not because," he said, "I have any suspicion of you, Prescott, but they have been looking into your connection with Ellington. I know myself that you were friends and I want to be able to tell the people who speak to me about it that as far as you were concerned you were too smart to play a game you knew nothing about."

I hadn't slept a moment all night. I had heard nothing from Leslie and that was driving me crazy. Although she had told me she would be home that morning I kept thinking that perhaps something might happen. It was like waiting for a last minute reprieve.

God forgive me, when I thought of a wreck on the railroad, it was not of Leslie lying maimed or dead, but of whether I would get the money to save myself from disgrace. When I thought of Leslie's father dying, it was not Leslie's grief but whether she would be able to get the money I needed so sorely. In thinking I became almost hysterical toward morning and when I heard a taxi coming up the quiet street toward our apartment house I found myself alternately swearing and praying in turn. And that moment Syd I knew myself for the first time and I was agast at the knowledge.

Heard on the New Records

Two Sprightly Records by Philadelphia Orchestra—Piano Selections by Samoff!

The classic dance is a delight, particularly when played by a great symphony organization like Dr. Stokowski's Philadelphia Orchestra. This week there are two of them on a single record, the waltz from the "Kermes" scene from "The Merry Widow" in Stokowski's opinion is the lightest and gayest waltz in the world. To accompany it is the tango "Mignon" by Cavotta, like a musical episode from some 17th Century salon at Versailles.

If, as we have seen, even the 3 hour record is a masterpiece of Stokowski's piano work, certainly Olga Samoff's new record of it this week is one of the finest interpretations we have ever heard. Its indescribably beautiful melodies and magnificent scale are played with great authority and power. As a companion piece in keeping is a Grieg Nocturne, a lovely fantasy from the North.

Mario Cahill in Two Acts
The delicate and at times, sadistic humor of this clever comedienne is well epitomized on a new record by her this week. If you have ever seen or heard Mario Cahill, you can understand the fun she packs into "In a Shoe Store," wherein she is fitted, and gives a critical comments on "Tad Symposium Concert."

The colored gentleman wearing blue specs is a good laugh-teaser, and among the best is Eddie Hunter, a singer of negro comedy songs, who makes a couple of new records this week. They are comic, half-sung half-spoken, with a lot of sage philosophy—"Complainin'" and "I Got."

Six New Dance Records
You probably have heard "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cuckoo." You have heard Paul Whiteman play it, but now you can, ready to dance to as the Whitemans can make you dance. "Oh, You Little Sun-Do-Do-Do," which fox trot the Benson Orchestra of Chicago plays on the other side, is a working bit of concerto-like piano work.

Werrenrath Sings Two Popular Songs
When you hear "The World is Waiting for the Sunrise" by this magnificent baritone, you appreciate how much a great artist can contribute towards elevating, even a very good song. With it (for this is another double-faced red seal record) goes "Rose in the Bush," which again goes to prove our point.

The better songs of the so-called popular style are very real to most of us, expressing as they do common aspirations and understandings. Two as a new record this week are of this kind. "We Gave Love a Home," by Elliott Shaw's baritone, and "Why Don't My Dreams Come True?" by Henry Burr. Both are in waltz time, and the latter has a lovely solo and "cello interlude."

hours a day! I wouldn't think of such a thing.

SECOND STENOGRAPHER—I wouldn't either. It was the boss that thought of it. Town Topics, New York.

Liquid, All Right
MISSISSIPPI BANKERS—How much have you in the way of immediate liquid assets?

PROSPECTIVE BORROWER—Oh, about a case, and a half.—Southern Lawyer and Banker.

Real Advancement
CLERK—Today I have been 25 years in your service, sir.

HIS BOSS—Yes. And look how you have risen. When you began you only got 100 marks a month. Now you're getting 1,000,000.—Megendorfer Blaetter (Munich).

That's Entirely Different
You can get a government Bulletin on the eradication of almost all nuisances caused by laws.—Roanoke (Va.) World News.

Movies for Convicts
LONDON—Inmates of Britain's penal institutions are "kinema" devotees now. The Home Office has just permitted the introduction of movies in the prisons. Many of the films are from America.

Cotton Spinning
WASHINGTON—Preliminary figures of the Department of Commerce show 37,491,706 cotton spinning spindles were in operation throughout the country on Oct. 1.

They Stole the Railroad
AMENES, France—Something New in the way of thefts is confronting authorities here. A supplementary railroad built during the war to carry supplies for troops in this vicinity has been stolen. Piece by piece, the rails have been carried away.

Conducive to Sleep
SOUTHWARK, Eng.—A new type of rubber block pavement is being tested here. The upper half inch is resilient rubber and the remainder of each block is hard rubber. The two grades are vulcanized together, forming a homogeneous block.

HAND-PAINTED FLOWERS
Hand-painted flowers are effective and novel trimmings for bouffant gowns of moire or satin.

ALL TIRED OUT
Hundreds Move in Bismarck in the Same Flight.

Tired all the time; Weak and worn out night and day.

Back aches; Head aches, Your kidneys are probably weakened. You should help them at their work.

Let one who knows tell you how. G. W. Barbeck, sta. engineer, Bismarck, says: "I had an attack of lumbago, I could hardly get about, my back was so lame and painful and I felt drowsy and tired. As engineer at the Electric Light Plant, there was more or less exposure to draughts and I began to get colds I took for starting the 'flu'. My kidneys didn't act regular, and when I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills being so good I began using them. One box cured me up and I have never since had a return symptom of kidney disorder."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy, get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Barbeck had. Foster-McLure Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

OPPOSITES. Finances arranged across the whole front section of a gown, and a perfectly plain, unadorned back are some of the inequalities of this year's sartorial season.

GOLD AND GRAY. Stripes of gold and gray are used effectively for evening gowns and even for the frocks themselves. The stripes have been known to be as wide as three inches.

MUFFS RETURNING. The report has been circulated that muffs, for a long time ignored by fashionable women, will be restored to favor this winter.

ORDER FOR DISPOSAL OR REPAIR OF BUILDING
The above entitled matter having come on for hearing before me, I, H. L. Reade, Fire Marshal, in and for the State of North Dakota, at the City of Bismarck, State of North Dakota, and after a consideration of the evidence submitted, the complaints made, the testimony produced, and after a full, complete and satisfactory investigation of the above described premises being had, findings with respect thereto are made as follows, to-wit: This property is in a dilapidated condition, has been vacant for some time, and within 30 days of the date of this order and notify the undersigned State Fire Marshal, at Bismarck, N. D., when this order has been complied with, and it is commanded under penalty of law, that the provisions of Sections 206 and 207, Compiled Laws 1913, and Senate Bill 147, Laws of 1919, that the requirements of this order be in all things complied with.

Dated at Bismarck, North Dakota, this 28th day of April, 1922.

H. L. READE, Fire Marshal.

NOTICE OF HEARING FOR CONDEMNATION
STATE OF NORTH DAKOTA, County of Burleigh, In District Court, Fourth Judicial District. In the Matter of the Order of the Fire Marshal concerning the following described premises, to-wit: Dwelling house situated on Lot 26, Block 64, McKenzie and Coffin Addition to the City of Bismarck, Burleigh County, N. Dak. Owners: Clara Ullum, Rosalie Pettit and Goldy M. Robatham, Defendants.

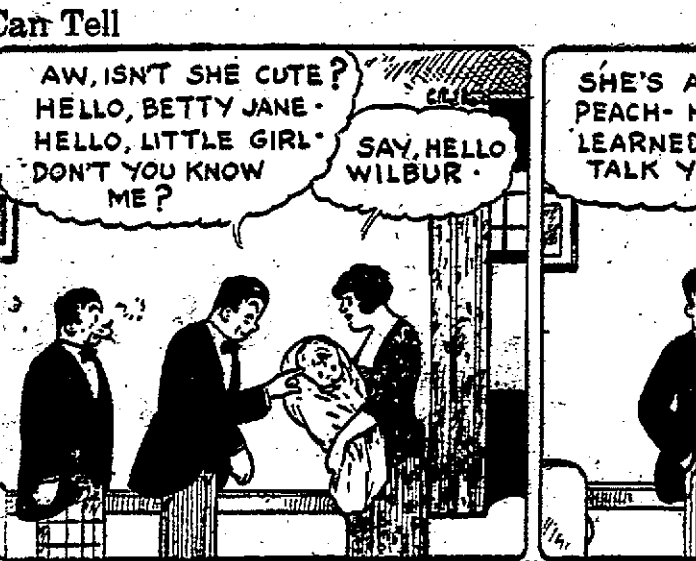

The State of North Dakota, ex rel. George F. Shafter, Plaintiff, vs. Clara Ullum, Rosalie Pettit and Goldy M. Robatham, Defendants.

You are hereby notified, that the Fire Marshal will apply to the court in the above entitled proceeding for a judgment of condemnation of the order of the Fire Marshal and against the premises above described, now on file in the office of the County State of North Dakota, a copy of which is hereto attached and marked Exhibit A, and that you objections, if any, must be filed with the court, and a copy of the same must be served on the Fire Marshal, within the time specified in the order of the court, and in case of your failure to do so, the order of the court will be entered against the premises as aforesaid, and the same will be condemned and sold as provided by law.

Dated at Bismarck, North Dakota, this 28th day of April, 1922.

GEORGE F. SHAFTER, Attorney General.

FARGO-OAKES VICTOR WILL PLAY LOCALS

Demons to Meet Team in High School Semi-Finals on November 9 or 10

ASKED TO COME HERE

The Bismarck high school "Demons" will meet either the Fargo or Oakes high school eleven on November 9 or 10 in the semi-finals of the state inter-scholastic football championship, it was announced today by Edgar Houser, coach of the Bismarck team. He said that the state high school board had definitely decided that the championship of the southern half of the state would be settled before the final game. Last year Bismarck met Williston in the semi-finals, while Fargo won the eastern half championship in the semi-finals.

The Bismarck high school authorities will invite the winner of the Fargo-Oakes game to play the titular contest in Bismarck. Written invitations will go forward this week to the management of the two teams. It is hoped to settle the place for the semi-finals game several days in advance of the time for the contest. If no agreement can be reached through exchange of correspondence as to a time and place of meeting it is probable that the state board will designate a mutual ground.

Bismarck High has an open date on the schedule next Saturday and efforts now are being made to get a game for that date.

The Minot and Grand Forks high school teams champions respectively of the northwestern and northeastern sections of the state, will meet Saturday to determine the right of one to enter the final game for the state championship. The game probably will be played at Devils Lake or Grand Forks.

WILTON WINS GAME, 52 TO 0

The Wilton high school team won a victory of 52 to 0 from Colebrook last Friday, at Wilton. Next Friday Wilton will play the second team of the Bismarck high school at Wilton. This is the first year that Wilton has organized a team and they are very proud of their showing.

Canada Schooner Wins Big Race

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 30.—The schooner of the Lunenburg, Canadian defender of the international fishermen's trophy, yesterday defeated the American challenger, Columbia of Gloucester in the first race of the series, leading the Challenger by 1 minute 20 seconds over a 40-mile course of Halifax harbor. The result was a surprise for the Gloucester men who were generally conceded to be the Columbia weather—light, variable winds.

With the breeze making six knots at the start, increasing to 17 later and veering from due west to south west, proved the truth of the fishermen's motto, that all things being equal, the bigger boat is the better boat. The defender appeared to have the edge on the challenger on all points of sailing under the conditions obtaining, but she was considerably lighter in ballast than when she defeated the Henry Ford of Gloucester last year and seemed to handle better.

An incident on the fourth leg in today's race in which the Canadian's main boom swept the forestays of the Columbia, doubling up the sheet rod and for nearly a minute towing the challenger, was the subject to-night of a controversy by fishermen. Rumors of a protest were heard on all sides, but none was lodged with officials and members of the American race committee stated there would be none.

NEEDS PITCHING

New York, Oct. 30.—The outcome of the world series has proved to McGraw that he must considerably strengthen his pitching staff if he is to stave off the rush that Cincinnati and Pittsburgh are certain to make next year. Incidentally another seasoned backstop of worthwhile ability would help the chances of the Giants. The infield and outfield are all that could be desired.

MADE 'EM HAPPY

Boston, Oct. 30.—It's a cinch that Earl Smith and Jesse Barnes, traded by New York to Boston early in the season, wept no tears when the Giants were trimmed in the world series. Barnes was the outstanding hero of the 1921 series. Now he is with an alibi.

"RABBIT" PASSES

Pittsburgh, Oct. 30.—The inside dope is that Hank Maranville is through as a player. The Rabbit is being bought as a player, but manager Fred Clarke says Dreyfus and the Pirates are not interested with the Pirates. It is said that a new player might be mentioned that would make shortstop of the supposed Maranville.

BUSH HITS HARD

New York, Oct. 30.—Joe Bush of the New York Americans is one of the best hitting pitchers in the game. In the recent world series Bush showed a distinction that seldom comes to a pitcher. In the final game of the series, with the bases filled, he was the Yankee selected to do the pinch hitting. He walked on four straight balls, showing the fear the pitcher, on the Giants' staff had of him.

EKLUND ONE OF SPAULDING'S BEST

PLESTINA, ZBYSZKO DRAW
New York, Oct. 30.—Marin Plestina and Wladek Zbyszko wrestled to a draw decision before a crowd of 6,000 fans here last night. The match went two hours and a half.

Billy Evans Says
Papyrus Improperly Shod
Zev Had Big Advantage
World Series Stars
Traynor Highly Touted

Zev demonstrated his superiority over Papyrus in a most convincing manner in the first big international turf event. However, a seemingly minor detail unquestionably was a big factor in the rout of the English horse. Traynor was not properly shod for the heavy going. The light, uncaulked shoes worn by the winner of the Epsom Derby were far from suited for the rain-soaked turf at Belmont Park.

In no sport has the value of being properly shod been proven more than in football. Gridiron coaches are more particular about the footwear of the athletes than any other part of their football equipment. The larger institutions that do not have to worry about expense, have various sets of shoes that are worn according to the weather and ground conditions. On a rain-soaked gridiron, the cleats on the shoes are just twice as long as those used on a dry field. Generally, they are of a different type that will provide a sure footing yet pick up the least possible amount of turf.

While not desiring to detract in any way from Zev's victory, it is a certainty that the race would have been far more interesting had Papyrus been shod with the same style shoes worn by the American horse. Uncertain footing positively made Papyrus timid and resulted in a shortened stride.

If there was one feature of the recent world series that stood out it was the infield play of both teams in which Joe Dugan and Heine Groh, rival third-sackers, shone to advantage. In almost every game these two great players pulled off a thriller or two and in several instances these plays just about decided the issue. Naturally, both players came in for much praise from the baseball experts and players attending the series.

"Have you ever seen 'Pie' Traynor of Pittsburgh play third?" No faning here that extolled the work of Groh and Dugan was complete unless someone brought up Traynor. Then the person who had asked the question would start to tell you what a wonderful player Pittsburgh had in Traynor. While I have only seen Traynor play a few games, I had a chance to appreciate his great worth in those contests. It would seem, however, that Traynor is even better than I had given him credit for, because never in my baseball career have I heard the praises of a player sung more highly.

JINX CAMPS ON TRAIL OF O'HEARN, YALE STAR

CHARLEY O'HEARN

By NEA Service
New Haven, Conn., Oct. 30.—Charley O'Hearn, rated one of the greatest athletes that Yale has ever produced, is out of football for the rest of the season. O'Hearn suffered a broken leg in the game with Bucknell.

A jinx has pursued O'Hearn during his career at Yale. He is a senior. In football he was injured in his sophomore year at the opening of the season and only returned to the lineup in time to play against Princeton and Harvard the final games of the season. His sensational run in the Princeton game enabled Yale to win.

Last year he was again injured early in the season. He managed to get into the final game against Harvard but was in poor condition. Big things were expected of him in his senior year if he could throw off the hoodoo that has relentlessly pursued him. After showing a brilliant game in the early starts, he suffered a broken leg in the Bucknell game that ends his football career at Yale.

O'Hearn is captain of the hockey and baseball teams at Yale and is hopeful that the injured leg will mend in time for him to lead these two teams.

MARRY ALIENS FOR MONEY

"Bridgerooms" Give Home Office Much Difficulty

London, Oct. 30.—The many mercenary "bridgerooms" who are willing to marry alien women for a financial consideration in order to allow them to enter the country, is providing the Home Office with a difficult problem.

Marriage to Britons makes these women British citizens, which is the goal at which they aim. The arrangement is generally that the bridgeroom lends his name for the ceremony, receiving from $60.00 to $75.00 for his trouble. The couple part at the registry doors, and the wife is thereafter free to travel any place in Great Britain or the Dominion without further question. The Home Office has been able to intervene in many cases, however, where the bridgerooms have overstepped their legal allowances and married in some instances as many as ten women. In these cases the women have been deported and the man sent to prison for bigamy.

The problem of the nationality of the wife was discussed several times during the last session of Parliament and will come before the Dominion's conference now meeting in London. Here it is expected a final decision will be made as to whether the wife retains her nationality, or takes that of her husband. If the former, the British government will take steps to have a bill passed allowing all married women to adopt English nationality at once, but prohibiting others from assuming it without going through the usual legal course.

During the year 1922 there were approximately 560 of these "convenient" marriages.

THREE FAST GOPHER PLAYS

A real football team is composed of units and cooperate, but that doesn't prevent some players from being of exceptionally high caliber. That's what University of Minnesota students think when they see the trio of fast and aggressive players pictured above. At the left is Louis Gross, a tackle who gets them from behind if they don't come his way and from in front if they do. Carl Liddberg, new on the varsity this year, is shown in the center, a halfback who will star brilliantly under any conditions, and at the right is Mal Graham, former Rochester high school star, whose headwork and speed in the open field promise to write his name large before the 1923 football season is history at Minnesota.

The Lucky Youth

Fortunatus had only to don his enchanted cap and make a wish to obtain anything his heart desired. It is not given to ordinary mortals to have so simple and direct a mode of filling their wants.

But have you ever considered what a boon advertising has become? Everything you need or wish is displayed for your benefit in the advertising columns. Merchants and manufacturers use advertising to lay before you their most attractive wares. You have only to choose at your ease the things you care most about before actually going to see them in the stores.

Advertising is continually making the world better dressed, better fed and better housed. It is increasing the world's capacity for things that elevate, improve and idealize the important business of living. It is a big, vital force in fostering convenient, comfortable and useful lives.

Empty your home of all advertised things and see the hole you make!

Yes, it pays to read advertising
